Kross Studio Unveils Six New Captivating Timepiece Collector Sets Inspired by the Dragons of House of the Dragon HBO series.

Gland, Switzerland (June 17, 2024) – Kross Studio, renowned for its innovative fusion of fantasy and haute horlogerie, proudly unveils new Collector Sets inspired by the awe-inspiring dragons of the acclaimed HBO series "House of the Dragon." As the second season of the series premieres on June 16, these exquisite timepieces and dragon egg sculptures offer discerning collectors an unparalleled opportunity to immerse themselves in the mythical realm of Westeros.

The six latest collector sets pay homage to Arrax, Silverwing, Moondancer, Seasmoke, Vermithor and Sunfyre, complementing and completing the dragon inspired series. Previous unique collector set editions from the Kross Studio x House of the Dragon collaboration were dedicated to Balerion (sold out), Viserion, Viserion Ice Dragon (sold out), Drogon (sold out), Rhaegal, Syrax, Caraxès (sold out), Meleys (sold out), Vaghar (sold out), and Vermax (sold out).

Each of the Collector Sets pays homage to a specific dragon from the "Game of Thrones" saga, capturing their unique essence and formidable presence. The main feature of each set is a mesmerizing central floating tourbillon watch, a masterpiece of horological engineering designed by Kross Studio's founder Marco Tedeschi. The watch and its tourbillon, suspended beneath a sapphire crystal dome, reflects the distinct aesthetic codes of House Targaryen, from its 45mm grade 5 titanium case to its intricate movement.

Complementing the watch is a meticulously crafted dragon egg sculpture in resin and hand-painted by the renowned French workshop Leblon Delienne. Each egg, inspired by the appearance of its corresponding dragon, serves as a nest for the watch and adds an element of fantasy and intrigue to the collection.

"We are thrilled to unveil these new Collector Sets, which represent a culmination of our passion for horlogerie and our deep admiration for the 'Game of Thrones' universe," said Marco Tedeschi. "Each piece is a testament to our commitment to craftsmanship, innovation, and storytelling, and we are confident that they will resonate with collectors and fans alike."

The ultimate Targaryen-inspired timepiece

At the heart of the Game of Thrones Central Floating Tourbillon lies the innovative KS 7'005 movement, a testament to Kross Studio's dedication to horological advancements. This movement features a world-first, manually wound floating central tourbillon, a mesmerizing complication that seems to defy gravity as it rotates within the watch. The peripheral hour display mechanism adds a touch of futuristic elegance, with hour markers positioned around the edge of the dial instead of the center. This innovative design, combined with the floating tourbillon, provides a captivating view of the intricate mechanics at play within the watch, blurring the lines between technical prowess and artistic expression.

KS 7'005 Caliber

The manual-winding patented floating central tourbillon is designed, crafted, and assembled in Kross Studio's workshops. As a fundamental particularity, the main functions of the movement such as energy accumulation, regulation, display, and winding are concentric and coaxial at the center of the watch. Therefore, the barrel and the regulator provide a power reserve of 120 hours with chronometric performances. This remarkable complication is a testament to the pinnacle of horological expertise, brought to life by the master artisans at Kross Studio Manufacture.

Floating in the skies

The cage of the central floating tourbillon is a visual marvel, marking a patented, world-first achievement. Like a dragon gliding across the heavens looking down from above, the floating central tourbillon's suspension just below the sapphire crystal dome offers a breathtaking view of the inner workings of the watch beneath it. With the tourbillon and its fixed second wheel levitating above the movement and hands, the construction provides a never-before-seen perspective into the mesmerizing mechanics of the tourbillon. This innovative design feature provides the opportunity to fully admire this horological masterpiece from every angle.

Reading the time

The innovation of the KS 7'005 movement also lies in the peripheral hour display mechanism, achieved by a planetary gear system mounted on two ball bearings, freeing the tourbillon from any obstruction.

Valyrian steel

The watch's design synthesizes key elements of the fantasy series and its renowned dragons, such as its dial, made of Damasteel®. Reminiscent of Valyrian steel, fans will recognize its striated appearance made up of multiple dark and shimmering layers. The Damascus steel used in the Dragon Central Tourbillon dial is crafted by Damasteel, the same foundry that forged the metal used in the HBO series' swords.

"Dreams didn't make us kings. Dragons did" - Daemon Targaryen

The ergonomic, grade 5 titanium or 18-carat pink gold watch case imitates the scales of a dragon through intricate three-dimensional engraving. Furthermore, the Targaryen House sigil, depicting a three-headed dragon breathing flames, is also hand-engraved in the center of the titanium watch case back. Each case back is uniquely identified by the name of the singular dragon that inspired the collector's set, with only one set dedicated to a single dragon.

"The Dance of the Dragons will soon begin."

An inextricable, transcendent bond links the Targaryen house's prestige and its dragons across ages, myth, and memory. As a symbol, for the Targaryens and the people of Westeros, dragons embody the ultimate power and loyalty and inspire awe and fascination. Kross Studio looked to these fearsome creatures' origins, their eggs, to inspire the collector sets' unique functional sculptures.

The Dragon Egg Functional Sculpture, designed by Marco Tedeschi, is produced in collaboration with the French workshop Leblon Delienne, long renowned for its incomparable expertise in crafting pop sculptures.

The design was carefully planned down to the smallest detail, inside and out. The outer shape of the eggs was created using a 3D scan of the TV show props. Each resin Dragon Egg has been painstakingly airbrushed and hand-painted to create a unique finish that is wholly individual, inspired by a single dragon.

The egg opens to serve as a nest for the Game of Thrones Central Floating Tourbillon or any timepiece of choice, which can be placed on a cushion supported by two towers inspired by the design of Dragonstone Castle, the ancestral seat of House Targaryen. The base of the stand features seven slots, one for each of the saga's seven kingdoms.
